Dan,

I do not know if this will help but I was taking my family on a camping vacation to West Yellowstone (first time Mnts. flying) from Minnesota. West Yellowstone was fogged in, My alternate in safe fuel range was back down the valley to I think it was called Ennis (Big Sky) and they were shutdown for resurfacing so we used Henry's lake. I did the first takeoff performance calculations that I had done in years. Hard to figure in the foot high grass but the Seneca made it. We walked up town to a restaurant above a gas station and had a breakfast that was hard to beat. The kids rated it very high because they mixed the chocolate milk by hand with lots of chocolate. We will probably do it again because of that breakfast.

Thanks
